

Public Choice

Contents of Volume 95 1998

Volume 95, Nos. 1-2

R.S. Sobel, Exchange rate evidence of the effectiveness of United Nations policy	1-25
K. Sherstyuk, How to gerrymander: A formal analysis	27-49
R. Fort and D.N. Bunn, Whether one votes and how one votes	51-62
D. Coates, Additional incumbent spending really can harm (at least some) incumbents: An analysis of vote share maximization	63-87
D.D. Davis and R.J. Reilly, Do too many cooks always spoil the stew? An experimental analysis of rent-seeking and the role of a strategic buyer	89-115
G.R. Parker and S.L. Parker, The economic organization of legislatures and how it affects congressional voting	117-129
S. Price and D. Sanders, By-elections, changing fortunes, uncertainty and the mid-term blues	131-148
G. Brennan and A. Hamlin, Expressive voting and electoral equilibrium	149-175
P. de Donder and J. Hindriks, The political economy of targeting	177-200

Book reviews

D.G. Baird, R.H. Gertner, and R.C. Picker Game theory and the law (A. Basuchoudhary)	201-204
D.-J. Kraan, Budgetary decisions: A public choice approach (P.J. Grossman)	204-206
J.C. Palamountain, Jr., The politics of distribution (W.F. Shughart II)	206-210
M.R. Garfinkel and S. Skaperdas (Eds.), The political economy of conflict and appropriation (R.S. Sobel)	210-213
R.E. Goodin (Ed.), The theory of institutional design (D. Coates)	214-218

Volume 95, Nos. 3-4

S. Merrill, III and B. Grofman, Conceptualizing voter choice for directional and discounting models of two-candidate spatial competition in terms of shadow candidates	219-231
------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	---------

B. Grofman, C. Collet and R. Griffin, Analyzing the turnout-competition link with aggregate cross-sectional data	233-246
C. Twight, What congressmen knew and when they knew it: Further evidence on the origins of U.S. broadcasting regulation	247-276
T.W. Hazlett, Oak Leaves and the origins of the 1927 Radio Act: Comment	277-285
R.D. Congleton and B. Steunenberg, Voter discernment and candidate entry in pluralitarian election	287-305
J.E. Payne, The tax-spend debate: Time series evidence from state budgets	307-320
N.J. Haering, Interjurisdictional redistribution and public goods with increasing returns to scale	321-329
J. Schimmelpfennig, The one-third rule: Learning about the net economic benefit of a subsidy from a single observation	331-334
S.J. Bailey and S. Connolly, The flypaper effect: Identifying areas for further research	335-361
J. de Haan and C.L.J. Siermann, Further evidence on the relationship between economic freedom and economic growth	363-380
K. Nyborg, Some Norwegian politicians' use of cost-benefit analysis	381-401
A. Haupt and W. Peters, Public pensions and voting on immigration	403-413
Book reviews
J. Knight and I. Sened (Eds.), Explaining social institutions (S. Lohmann)	415-418
A. Breton, G. Galeotti, P. Salmon and R. Wintrobe (Eds.), Nationalism and rationality (J.R. Rogers)	418-422
Erratum	423-434
Instructions to authors	435-436
Volume contents	437-438
Author index	439

